

Jasmine

Jasmine: Hey Daddy.

Darnell: Jasmine, how did you get here?

Jasmine: Mom dropped me off.

Darnell: Did you have an appointment with the doctor today?

Jasmine: No. Mom wanted me to come over here to speak with you more about vacationing with us after the storm passes.

Darnell: I don't have time for this ... I told you Jasmine, Bridgette has to be there.

Jasmine: Dad, I really want this to be you and mom, like it use to be.

Darnell: Jasmine it can't be you and mom like it use to be. I'm married to Bridgette. And Bridgette loves you. She treats you as if you're her own daughter.

Jasmine: Dad... you want me to be honest about why I want this?

Darnell: Yes.

Jasmine: Dad I've been feeling neglected since you married Bridgette. And I get it, you guys suffered the lost of two sons. So I understand you two clinging to each other more. But I feel left out.

Darnell: What?

Jasmine: I hardly see you. Bridgette doesn't talk to me. It's like i'm being replaced. Mom sees this so she wants me to spend more time with you.

Darnell: Babygirl I'm so sorry. I know that I've been extra focused on running the city but believe me my intentions were never to neglect you. You are my everything. (Pauses and Sighs) Look, I'll speak with Jessica about the trip. Maybe we can work something out.

Jasmine: Dad, I don't want Bridgette there. I don't feel comfortable with her right now. I just want you and mom. Please dad!
